

FOUR MASKED MEN ROB FREIGHT TRAIN

In Regular Wild West Style They Hold up a Train Near Buffalo and Get Away with two Truck Loads of Goods.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Buffalo, April 15.—Four masked men armed with revolvers held up a fast freight on the New York Central R. R. at Sanborn early this morning. In true wild west style they lined the crew up against the side of the train and while two men stood guard the other two robbers broke open the cars.

The fast freight left Rochester last night loaded with valuable merchandise. It was bound for Suspension Bridge where a connection is made with the Michigan Central. The crew consisted of the engineer, fireman, conductor and two brakemen. The train slowed down in passing through the town of Sanborn. A man suddenly appeared on the tracks and waved a warning. The engineer shut off his engine and the train came to a stop. As it did so two men climbed into the cab and leveled their revolvers at the engineer and fireman. The train crew left the caboose to find the reason for the stopping of the train and these three men found themselves also confronted by two masked men who shoved revolvers in their faces and ordered them to throw up their hands.

The trainmen were then ordered to march up to the engine and they went, guarded by the robbers. The five men were lined up alongside a car and while one man kept them covered with a revolver, the other three uncoupled the engine from the rest of the train. The engineer and fireman were then ordered to get into the cab and run the engine up the track about forty feet. Suddenly two auto trucks appeared. While the train crew was kept under guard the other two robbers began breaking the seals on the box cars and loading the most valuable of the freight into the trucks.

Seizing a favorable moment when their guard was standing on the ground the engineer and fireman leaped back into the cab of the engine and ducking low to escape a possible fire from the revolver opened the throttle and started the engine. The guards tried to reach them but the engine gained speed so quickly that he was soon out-distanced. Then began a thrilling chase. A few minutes later the engine was on the Suspension Bridge. The night station agent was quickly aroused and told of the robbery. A minute later a call for help was going over the wires.

The Central Detective Bureau at Niagara Falls was notified and half a dozen men were soon speeding in an auto toward the scene of the robbery. Half a dozen other men armed with revolvers jumped into the cab of the engine and were hurried back to Sanborn. When the engine returned to the scene the robbers had disappeared but they had taken two big truck loads of merchandise. There were three cars filled with dynamite in the train but they were not molested.

The fast Buffalonian on the West Shore railroad was delayed about three hours on Wednesday night when the two front wheels of the tender jumped the track. At the time the train was running between Milton and Marlborough when the accident happened. Due to the quick work of the engineer the train was brought to a stop. Word was sent to Kingston and an engine was sent to the scene and hooking on to the rear end of the train it was pulled to Milton and switched onto the southbound track and run as far as Marlborough when it was switched back to the north bound track and continued on up the river. The train reached Kingston shortly after one o'clock this morning. Among the Kingstonians aboard the Buffalonian at the time were Walter Ostrander, of Ostrander & Woolsey, Aaron Hynes of Wall Street, Harry Hynes, Frank Forman of the Up-to-Date Company, and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Chambers.

U. A. TO OPEN BASEBALL SEASON

Ulster Academy will usher in its last baseball season Saturday when Beacon High School will be the opposing force at the Athletic Field. The season was expected to open April 3 but no game could be scheduled. The team has had a good week of stiff drilling and is well prepared to tackle the strong Beacon team, which has always starred on the diamond. Of course the Ulster team will fight hard to win the first game because every Ulster man is hoping for a renewal of the "Champs of the Hudson" title. The first ball will be pitched promptly at 2:30.

Eight faces of last year's regulars will again be seen Saturday and this veteran material is the best asset a team can possess at the beginning of the year. The team will appear as follows: Peyer, Osterhout, catcher; Cullison, pitcher; Terwilliger, first base; Hallinan, second base; Downer, Joyce, short stop; Peleman, third base; Shultis, Healey, Keating, left field; Kiernan, Boyle, Moses, center field; Joyce, Webster, right field.

Navigation Notes.

A seven foot freshet at Albany has caused much delay to navigation and the Trojan and Rensselaer are having a hard time in making their docks. It has also interfered with the Cornell tows. The Morse people propose starting its lines out of New York at twelve o'clock midnight for the reason that there seems to be a demand for such service in each direction.

FEDERATION HEADS ACT ON REPORTS

Many matters of importance were considered at the executive committee meeting of the Federation of Women's Clubs, held at the home of the president, Mrs. M. J. Michael, this morning. Miss Ellen Van Slyke, the secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting. The report of the treasurer, Mrs. O'Meara, was as follows:

Balance on hand in March	$618 88
Receipts:
Rent of Social Center Association Rooms	10 00
Dues	2 00
Total receipts	$630 88
Disbursements:
Rent of Federation House	$20 00
Expense of Federation House	16 00
Salary of Social Worker	65 00
Day Nursery	27 33
Relief Work	2 17
Visiting Nurse	7 50
Expenses lecturer on trees	9 41
Janitor Fair Street Church	1 00
Contingent fund, Third district	1 00

Total disbursements... $149 41
Balance on hand... $481 47

Mrs. Patchen, the corresponding secretary, reported a communication from Prof. Francis, who lectured here on the subject of trees recently, in which he stated that he was preparing a report on the shade trees of Kingston as he found them, and as soon as prepared the same would be sent to the Kingston Federation of Women's Clubs. He expressed himself as much pleased with his visit to Kingston. A communication was also received from the chairman of the Ninth Judicial District, inviting this Federation to attend a meeting of the Ninth district to be held in Poughkeepsie on Thursday, April 29, both morning and afternoon, at the Y. M. C. A. building. The Tuesday Afternoon Club of Poughkeepsie and the New Hamburg Club will entertain. It was voted that the Kingston Federation be represented by its president, Mrs. M. J. Michael, and its secretary, Miss Ellen Van Slyke. Any members of the Federation may accept this invitation, but if they do so, they should notify Mrs. Patchen, the corresponding secretary, so that the entertaining body may be notified of the number of guests to expect. Still further communications relative to public health legislation were read and it was voted that Dr. Day, chairman of the public health committee, should take whatever action in the matter she deemed advisable for the Federation.

At this point Mrs. MacMillan asked that she be allowed to give her report as this was still "ration day" at the Federation House. She most heartily thanked the Federation for their action in increasing her salary, as they so generously did. She regretted that she had been obliged to miss recent meetings of the executive committee, since on the day of their meeting she had been busy distributing rations to some eighty or ninety families each of those Thursday. Last week there were but forty families to receive rations, a falling off of fifty families from the week before. Sickness or death on the part of the wage earner in some families might slightly increase the number of families to be helped this week. It seemed that by the first of May the problem of unemployment would be nil. Mrs. MacMillan called attention to the passage of the widows' pension bill, which when operative, will do much to relieve distress as it is often found now where a woman is left a widow with small children. Though probably not becoming effective until next January, this bill gives hope ahead. There has been sixty-two days' care given at the Day Nursery this past month, showing that the mothers were securing work. Twelve children were cared for at the Day Nursery on Monday. Mrs. MacMillan then told of a number of specific cases in which the Federation would be interested.

It was hoped that relief would come through the courts of New Jersey to a man who through accident had sustained a broken back, and was therefore absolutely incapacitated from caring for his family. A case of a family where the father was totally blind, and an eighteen year old lad was the sole support of a family of six (four children), since the mother could not leave the blind father, was spoken of. Some intensive work would be carried on with that family immediately. Both Mrs. MacMillan and Miss Ougheltree, county agent, asked for work, gardening, spring house cleaning work, not too heavy, for a man who had been invalided but was now able to support his family, if work of this character could be given him.

Then there was a negro family where the father was paralyzed, and it had been necessary to give special aid. Mrs. MacMillan said that in but very few cases, had many been given out during the winter, but the money donated had bought rations which were distributed as needed. Where rents were to be paid, the same were paid direct to landlords by checks. In several cases money had been donated with the special request that it be used for special cases of needed rent. The early spring, the month of March with no rain so that there had been continual work at the shipyards had done a vast deal to relieve the strain and stress of the weeks before. Moreover, the generosity of the people of Kingston had been shown in many instances by landlords waiting for their rents until their tenants could secure work with which to meet their obligations in that direction. The good work that had been done in all friendliness by the people of Kingston the past winter, Mrs. MacMillan considered beyond measure. Just briefly she spoke of a recent visit to Mrs. Son, formerly of Kingston, and who is now working as a social worker in the East Side, New York. As was to be expected, Mrs. Son was doing remarkably good work there.

The tree spraying matter was again brought up, and on the recommendation of Mr. Hook of the farm bureau, that the spraying be continued one more year. It was decided that the Federation, through Mrs. Essenden, should at once investigate the possibility of the Federation doing the work yet this season.

A few minor, necessary indoor repairs for the Federation House were asked for, and it was voted that if the work was given, as it was understood it would be, the Federation would provide all necessary materials.

The matter then came up of securing funds with which to carry on the Federation work another year, and it was voted to hold the annual "Tag Day," probably in June. Mrs. Van Hoesenbergh was appointed chairman, with Mrs. Essenden assisting her. Details of the work will be published as soon as arranged.

The Atharhacton Club invited the Federation to be their guests at the annual meeting in May, at which time they will present a unique and very interesting program.

There were but a very few committee reports given, and in each instance they showed active and progressive work being carried forward. The meeting then adjourned.

THE sinking sun glared at the moon. "What are you so perky and cheerful about? Compared with me, you're a mighty small affair, don't you know?" said the sun.

BLOUSE AND SKIRT.

The skirt and blouse shown here is a combination which is extremely practical for all but formal occasions. The separate skirt of covert can be worn throughout the summer with blouses of silk or linen or lawn. This skirt is a plain circular one with a belt attached and trimmed with ball buttons.

SUIT CASE SEWING ROOM.

For a woman living in a small apartment, or a home that is not large enough to include a sewing room, an excellent substitute for a sewing room—not a sewing basket—is an inexpensive Japanese suit case. The bag fastened to the inside of the cover (for shirts) is a splendid place to keep paper patterns, scraps of cloth, written lists of little things required on the next shopping tour, etc. The other part, of course, is for the sewing. A cushion can be attached to the side for pins and needles; also a box containing thread, scissors, tape measure, tailor's chalk, lead pencil, thimble, etc. Such a suit case is large enough to contain practically all that one needs in sewing. Furthermore, it looks neater when closed than a box of the same size would, is much more durable and is easily carried from one room to another, or kept by the side of the machine.

Sweet Scented Grass Workbasket.

odor. The one shown is lined with flowered silk and equipped with all sewing appurtenances.

RIDE A HOBBY.

The woman who is not interested in things in general or something in particular is an uninteresting companion. No matter how beautiful she may be, her charm will be minimized or of short duration.

The victim of ennui or indifference victimizes everybody about her. Her friends may look upon her and admire her beauty, but she is decidedly uninteresting, and even a little bit of her society is generally an overdose.

To be bored is not to be interesting. If you are weary of everything in life you need the attention of a physician; there is something wrong with you, mentally and physically.

Something new and interesting in this world is cropping out every minute. The most interesting people are those who see things and get all possible pleasure out of them. An exhibition of indifference to things about you is not an evidence of intelligence. Intelligent people are the ones whose eyes are open. That is the way they become interesting. Such people are the most interesting. Sometimes they are so interesting that even if they happen to look beauty that fact is forgotten in admiration for their intellect.

Some one has said that everybody should ride a hobby.

STRENGTH OF MIND.

A weak mind sinks under prosperity as well as under adversity. A strong and deep mind has two highest tides—when the moon is at full and when there is no moon.

KINGSTON, N. Y., APRIL 15, 1915.

While Colonel Roosevelt has not yet made any definite utterance on the subject and is not likely to do so for some time to come, it is a notable fact that those closest to him convey the impression that he is going to support the next Republican Presidential candidate, no matter who he may be. Of course, he will use all the influence he can to have a man agreeable to himself selected, but he hates Wilson more than he hates any Republican. We are inclined to think that at a pinch he would come out for Taft, but we hesitate to say that he would do as much for William Barnes. As for running himself, he has evidently abandoned the idea. He knows that his candidacy could do no more than to elect Wilson, and that in the present temper of the people it would probably fail to do that. Obviously, there is only one way to keep himself on the map, and he will take it.

The farmers of this State ought to be interested in the statement of Minority Leader Smith in the Assembly that they are being bunched out of a quarter of a million dollars a year by speculators who buy their "old skates" at $5 apiece and sell them to the State at $40 as glandered horses which must be killed. Now we see why the late Democratic administration refused to appropriate any money for this purpose. It was to save the poor innocent farmer from being cheated. The fact that there is hardly a farmer in the State who does not know the law about diseased animals makes no impression on a Tammany statesman. To his mind everybody who does not live on Manhattan Island is a simoleon and a crook to boot. There is no way to eradicate this notion. It crops out in all kinds of ways. Farmers read the papers and have a better mental grasp on general affairs than the typical city man. Naturally, they do not like to be sneered at by their inferiors, and that is one of the reasons why they vote as they do when Tammany is an issue.

There is considerable alarm among medical experts over the possibility of the spread of the typhus epidemic now raging in Serbia. Unless a large amount of money can be raised and a large number of physicians sent to the center of infection the plague is sure to spread all over Europe and will surely reach New York harbor. It is spread by a tiny parasite in much the same way as yellow fever is propagated, but this insect is more dangerous than the mosquito, since he gives no warning buzz and is practically invisible. Dr. O'Connell of the New York quarantine station declares that "if the physicians could induce every Serbian to take a bath and wash all clothing in boiling water the epidemic would stop as if by magic." The trouble is that the Serbians will not do this. It is against their traditions. New York has many people with similar prejudices. We suppose that the enforcement of compulsory cleanliness would cause a riot. Individuals who keep their bodies and clothing in sanitary condition are in peril if they happen to have dirty neighbors. Vast sums of money have been raised to feed the starving Belgians, but it is quite difficult to raise funds for cleaning up Serbia. It has been so long since we have had a serious epidemic in this country that it is hard to convince the average man that there is a possibility of such a thing.

The Vatican authorities have made haste to denounce as "fantastic and false" the article published by one von Wiegand which purported to be an interview with the Pope in which Benedict XV was made to say that the United States ought to forbid the exportation of arms to Europe. His Holiness is about as far removed from being a fool as men ever get to be, and no reasonable person believes that he ever expressed such an opinion. The stoppage of such shipments would have no effect other than to prolong the war and increase the number of deaths. President Wilson laid an embargo on the sending of munitions of war to Mexico, and everybody knows the result. The condition of that unhappy country is worse than it was before, and more hopeless. Benjamin Franklin is credited with the opinion that there was never a good war or a bad peace, but his wisdom was taking a vacation when he said that. There have been good wars, and a peace is bad when it leaves international affairs in such an unsettled state that another war is bound to occur in the near future. It seems to us that there can be no question that the settlement of the first Balkan war was a bad peace, since fighting broke out again immediately. If the war now raging should be called a draw, it would be the worst thing that could happen. Somebody has got to be thoroughly "kicked."

OUR GARDENS.

(By Our Woman Editor.)

The sun is traveling with delightful speed to the time of gardening, and one wishes that all of us had the time and the spirit to coax the great Mother Earth to yield some of her sweetest blossoming treasures, to be had for the working.

Do you guess the secret of "the old homestead" when it is spoken of with a lingering note of tenderness that makes you sure the home is very dear? It is not love of the stretch of land, or even of the house itself, rich in happy memories as it may be, but joy in every nook and corner of green, growing, blossoming things, upon which there has been something of personal work and a lot of hopeful watching.

The "spreading chestnut tree" one time was a tiny growth, when boys and girls were tiny with it, watched it develop through years to the strength of budding time, waited with all the impatience of childhood for the dropping of nuts—and then loved it as a vital part of the old place.

A ready-made garden may be mighty nice, formal and lovely, but we look at it, admire and turn away. But wait until we come to the spot, just a bare corner a few years ago, transformed into what will soon be a mass of swaying color, lovely in itself, but more beautiful because it has been worked upon with loving care. For, you know, it is in the back-breaking, but altogether delighted process of kneeling upon the soft, moist soil, working and working among the flowers, that we learn the real joy of gardening.

Time was when I saw with amazement a horn gardener steal out to a little patch of ground, still cold and dreary under the winds and lingering snows of March, where he would stand as if he expected the earth to open by magic and the flowers to shoot up at his bidding. Everyone tolerantly smiled and wondered—but he knew that back in November when the birds and buds of summer had gone he had planted sturdy brown bulbs that were doing their best in the cold ground to grow into crocuses, snowdrops and the bewitching yellow daffodils. And so he was willing to wait, watch and even run the gauntlet of smiles for the sake of the feast of color later on, which never would have seemed to him half so riotous if he had not had a working part in the growth.

One cannot understand until she tries, cannot guess the pleasure that comes when the little seedlings prove just half true to the hope placed in them and the work put upon them. Then all the weary trudging back and forth is forgotten, hot sun, weeds, horrid, wriggly worms that make one want to shut her eyes and run, all nothing by the side of the tender little plants that may not be the most beautiful ever, but that came because one worked upon them and, yes indeed, perspired to the point of depression and heaviness. Then—if the things will only come up, one smiles and knows all about it, is willing to work some more and change another bare corner into a wonder spot. In fact, it may not be wonderful at all, not half so pretty or so splendid as one's neighbors', but—well, you know if you have tried, and if not, there's a little square patch of ground waiting to teach a lesson that is well worth the learning.

In sunshine and among flowers one must grow glad and gladder, and if there is a personal element that comes from toiling and digging, weeding and planting, the little garden seems so much more real, alive and worthy of attention.

But the time—"ay, there's the rub."

It takes it, hours and hours, and days and days, just for a nice beginning. Not many of us are rich in leisure hours, so what can we do but promise and hope for the time of fulfillment, slipping in a few seeds as we can, a few bulbs and shrubs to give a hint of what the real garden-kingdom might mean.

Meanwhile, there is one little promise I am wondering about. It was one of those wavering pledges that maybe will come to something, more likely not. Last year, with lots of time ahead for the maturing of plans, promise was vaguely given, if nothing more was done, to scatter broadcast among a lot of weeds, high and low, a host of poppy seeds, and see what happened.

Back of the promise is the hope that the delicate pink and white and the gloriously brilliant red poppies many outrank and overtop the wildest thing that grows in that stretch of woodland. If only the promise is remembered it would seem that a great mass of poppies flinging up their delicate, flower-tipped arms, might be so beautiful among their enemies, the weeds, as to recall the glory of Wadsworth's wonderful field of daffodils.

"And all at once I saw a crowd,
A host of golden daffodils."

On the Run.

"Jabe Mathis," said General Longstreet, "of the Thirteenth Georgia, was a good soldier, but one day, when the Confederates were retreating from the gory field of Gettysburg, Jabe threw his musket on the ground, seated himself by the roadside, and exclaimed with vehemence: 'I'll be doggoned if I walk another step; I'm broke down. I can't do it.' And Jabe was the picture of despair. 'Git up, man,' exclaimed the captain, 'don't you know the Yankees are following us? They'll get you sure.' 'Can't help it,' said Jabe, 'I'm done for; I'll not march another step.' The Confederates passed along over the crest of a hill and lost sight of poor, dejected Jabe. In a moment there was a dash of musketry and a renewed crash of shells. Suddenly Jabe appeared on the crest of the hill, moving with hurricane swiftness and followed by a cloud of dust. As he dashed by his captain that officer said: 'Hello, Jabe, thought you wasn't going to march any more?' 'Thunder!' replied Jabe, as he hit the dust with renewed vigor, 'you don't call this marching, do you?'—Kansas City Star.

The Patriot.

Eddie Foy, apropos of St. Patrick's day, told a story at the Players' Club in New York.

"An old waiter," he said, "in a certain hotel in Dublin was being questioned on his opinions of home rule."

"We'll not get home rule for old Ireland," he said, "till France an' Russia an' Germany give them blayards of English a good hiding." "Then, seeing that no Irishman was within hearing, he added, in a genial whisper:

"An' sure, the whole lot o' them shoved together couldn't do it. Ogh, it's the grand navy we've got!"—New York Telegraph.

A Girl's "Throw."

Joseph H. Choate, former United States ambassador to Great Britain, has caused a great deal of interest by stating that "England is determined never to submit or yield, and never to make peace till the devil of militarism has been so vanquished that it will never trouble the earth again."

Mr. Choate has a great love for all things English, and while he was over there he earned the reputation of being the wittiest after-dinner speaker of the day.

One of the most amusing stories he ever told is the following:

"Two young girls were drinking tea at a fashionable restaurant when a young man raised his hat and passed on. As he passed the first girl blushed, displayed a beautiful ring on her white hand and murmured: 'Well, Jack and I are to be married Easter week.'"

"But," said the other girl, 'I thought you had thrown Jack over?' "Oh, so I did," the first replied, blushing again and hiding her face, but—how do you know how a girl throws?"—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

In for Some Time.

A collector called at Mr. Smith's. "Is Mr. Smith in?" he asked.

"Yes, he's in, all right, all right." Mrs. Smith answered in an odd, defiant tone.

"Then can I see him?" said the collector.

"No, you can't," said Mrs. Smith.

"But why not, pray, if he's in?" "Because he's in for six months, that's why not?"

"The most artistic performance of 'Il Trovatore' ever taken on tour," is the verdict of Press and Public.

The Boston English Opera Company is as different from the average opera company as a New York production is from a repertoire company.

They do only the one opera "IL TROVATORE," and every energy has been directed to make that one opera a real production.

The cast headed by Joseph F. Sheehan, one of the world's greatest "Manricos," has been especially selected for this one opera. The production also was built for "IL TROVATORE" only and is complete in every detail.

The prices are exceedingly reasonable for such an organization and criticisms from other cities unite in proclaiming it the most artistic and complete production of "IL TROVATORE" ever taken on tour.

ELABORATE CREATION.

Frills and Bows Make Taffeta Frock Very Smart.

AFTERNOON GOWN.

Some frocks this season are plain, but we would by no means include in the category the frock pictured in the illustration.

The gown is developed in pale gray taffeta, and the skirt is covered with wide circular flounces held beneath a straight panel at the back. The bodice is of taffeta, with sleeves and collar of white net, finished with stiff frills. The wide girde ends in a huge bow placed sidewise over the hip.

Domestic Hints.

Never use linen to clean mirrors or windows, as it sheds lint and often causes streaks.

Wash linoleum and oilcloth with lukewarm water, then polish it with a soft woolen cloth which has been dipped in milk.

Use no soap on window glass. Use old muslin and clean, soft water. A cotton cloth dipped in a little alcohol will add brilliancy to the final rub.

If white of egg is applied with a small camelhair paint brush to fly specks on gilt frames, then rubbed gently with a soft cloth the specks will disappear.

When your house plants look a trifle dejected and water does not revive them try putting coffee grounds on the roots three times a week; then once a week give them a tablespoonful of olive oil. Do not allow the earth to become hard and dry.

The Useful Sailor.

Every one is glad that the sailor shape is in evidence in spring millinery. Many hats there are of picture type, poke shapes, too, that are vastly becoming. But for general wear nothing is so smart as the sailor. It will probably be worn a good deal when warmer weather comes.

Ether Removes Grease Stains.

Ether is a very good thing to remove grease stains from wearing apparel. Another method is to dip the garment in tepid water, then place it in cold water to which a little borax has been added. The article should be soaked for several hours and then dried quickly.

WOMEN'S WHIMSIES.

Beaded, brocaded and plain velvet or satin bags are the mode, made in reticulate shapes, quite large and finished with a long tassel at the bottom or with ribbon drawn tops.

One wrinkle is to wear Egyptian designed amulets done in rhinestones set in flat settings of antique gold or silver or even of jet or ivory, appended to long chains made of the same jewels.

These accompany trailing, seardike evening gowns made of gorgeously colored chiffons, brocaded crapes or satins of a particularly soft quality.

For those who possess lace scarfs, no matter what the shape or length, quality or type, the season's latest adventure reveals a liking for these frivolous neck or shoulder fixings for wear with the new gowns for dance and evening wear.

Even the fluffs of tulle or maline which have been used all season in clouds of frothy white or in sunset tints of gorgeous colorings have their ends weighted by single metallic threaded tassels or with silk made roses in bouquet forms, each one concealing a silk covered weight to keep it in position.

A Sad Thought.

"These incubators make me feel bad for the poor little chickens who have no mother's care. They are really melancholy."

"Perhaps; they're brooders."—Baltimore American.

"SATAN SANDERSON"

At the Opera House tomorrow matinee and night. —Advertisement.

New Old Slang.

Modern slang isn't necessarily new. It has been pointed out lately that "good night" in its modern slang sense appears in Shakespeare. In "Henry IV," part one, Worcester, speaking of the danger of the conspiracy (Act one, scene three), refers to the peril of one who should attempt to overwalk "a current roaring loud, on the unsteady footing of a spear." Hotspur continues, "If he fall in, good night!"

As a young man Washington wrote, "I heard the bullets whistle, and, believe me, there is something charming in the sound." That "believe me" is almost modern enough for a moving picture show.—Kansas City Star.

Not His Preference.

Little James was taken to a luncheon, and the hostess served roast beef. He had managed to put away everything else served, but left the meat untouched on his plate. The hostess asked him why he hadn't eaten it and he replied: "I can't eat Sunday meat." He doesn't like roasted meat, and that is what they generally have at his home on Sundays.

Contradiction.

It is strange that men should see sublime inspiration in the ruins of an old church and see none in the ruins of a man.—G. K. Chesterton.

BEGGARS OF CHINA

They Are an Impudent and Aggressive Set of Rogues.

BRAZEN PRANKS THEY PLAY.

Some of the High Handed Schemes They Use For the Purpose of Extorting Money From Their Victims—One Clever Method of Robbery.

Begging is in the nature of an art in China, and the various sorts of supplicants have been classified until now it is known that there are at least thirty classes of traveling mendicants who regularly go from place to place, playing their profitable vocation. The passenger boats know them only too well and do not attempt to collect passage money, for they sleep on the open deck and, curiously enough, pay for whatever rice they require. This being the case, rather than have any trouble with them and gain their enmity the boatmen allow them free passage.

When the mendicants reach the city they put up at the beggar hotel near the big pagoda and let the beggar headman know of their arrival. Soon the regular allowance is forthcoming from their victims, and the beggars spend a few days in pursuit of pleasure and then move on to another place to repeat the same proceeding.

There is one particularly obtrusive and disagreeable class trained to balance various objects on the nose, which usually selects a victim of means. These fellows may walk into a house and pick up chairs and balance them on their noses as they prance around the room. They then take these and place them just outside of the door, possibly on the street, much to the satisfaction of the large crowd which has followed them, as they have possibly just done the same thing down the street a bit. If the money is immediately forthcoming, the show may soon stop and the things will be returned to their proper places.

If, on the other hand, the residents refuse to comply with their demands, they pick up one article of furniture after another, skillfully balance each upon their noses, and, amid the roar of satisfaction from the street rabble, they carry them outside to the street. This may continue till the whole of the room's contents have been piled upon the street, and then the beggars walk off amid the bursts of applause that follow their action and leave the victim to move his belongings back into the house.

Again, there are others who are beggars pure and simple, who walk in the middle of the street, beating the pavement with a small bamboo stick. They turn neither to the right nor to the left to beg, but keep their eyes fixed ahead of them and take only what is thrown to them.

In quite another class is the wretch who shams ailment or physical defect, and who is a clever actor, willing to go to considerable physical discomfort in his efforts to arouse sympathy. He makes a practice of cutting himself when his demands are refused. He will appear before a family and demand a fee. If this is refused he draws a knife and cuts his forehead, and the blood begins to flow, much to the horror and confusion of those in the house, especially if they are only women.

The sight of blood quickly changes the matter, and the beggar begins to yell in a most distressing way at the same time, attracting a crowd. It is now easy with so many witnesses to open negotiations for a much larger fee, and he is usually paid considerably more than was at first demanded. Having carried his point, the beggar now tours the entire street, where the news of his actions has preceded him, and he finds no trouble in collecting a handsome little sum from his one cut, for the blood, still fresh on his face, strikes terror to the chicken hearted.

There is also a class of criminals who are sent into exile and sentenced to beg for a certain period of time in a province a long distance from their native places. This does away with the necessity of the government's feeding the criminal and puts him out upon public charity.

Of a very different class are the men who have a pitiful tale of starvation to tell, which, they bewail, compels them to sell their wives or sons. Few indeed would think of making a purchase of this nature, and the story almost invariably results in the bestowal of money on the "unfortunate" man. However, if he finds some one who is willing to make the bargain and take the child he is inwardly delighted, for this means a full bag for him when he finally hands in his net.

The son goes with the new master and proves himself an unusually satisfactory lad, doing his work with his whole heart in it and thereby gaining his master's approval and entire confidence as he had planned. In due time the dutiful son slips the latch and allows his fond father to enter and secure all the goods possible, and to together father and son leave with all the plunder they can possibly carry.—Argonaut.

THE FLOCKMASTER.

In counting the profits from your flock do not fail to count the value of the fat lambs killed during the twelve months for the family use and the high value of all the manure.

Worms in sheep are usually caused by infected pastures. Dampness is the cause of many fatal sheep diseases.

Sheep manure is the richest manure of all.

It does not pay to keep sheep after they are seven or eight years old.

In your breeding try to improve the quantity and quality of the wool.

COLTS IN HARNESS.

Treatment of the Skin to Prevent Abrasions and Sores.

When they are first put into harness young horses are particularly liable to be galled by the harness because their skin is not accustomed to the pressure and friction caused by the collar, pad, etc., says the American Cultivator. Horses just up from grass are also especially susceptible to suffer from this trouble because of their soft condition.

The fact of a horse's system being in a heated state or "humory" is another predisposing cause of harness galls and sores, while some horses are unusually prone to them, owing to their skin being specially sensitive and delicate. In all these cases it is a useful plan, in order to harden the skin, to bathe the parts exposed to galling twice or thrice a day with a saturated solution of alum, while a lotion consisting of bluestone (copper sulphate), dissolved in water at the rate of five grains to an ounce of water, may also be recommended for use as a toughening agent and to counteract any tendency on the part of the skin to become chafed. One simple remedy for abrasions and sores caused by the harness is oxide of zinc ointment.

BROOD SOW WITH PIGS.

Importance of Full Rations During the Suckling Period.

Some experiments were conducted by Professor Henry at the Wisconsin station to determine the cost of producing gains in pigs during the suckling period and after weaning. In discussing the results of these experiments Professor Henry says that it thus appears that young unweaned pigs are fed more economically through the sow than after weaning. This means that at no time in the pig's life are gains made with such economy as during the suckling period. Understanding this principle, the good hog man will always feed his sows and pigs most liberally before weaning. Even with the best of feeding a good brood sow will usually lose weight during the suckling period.

A milk producing ration must of necessity contain a liberal allowance of nitrogenous material. Alfalfa pasture supplies protein, but the brood sow must have additional protein in a more concentrated form. This can be supplied most cheaply by the use of tankage, although some hog men strongly advocate the use of linseed oil meal. With the present prices prevailing for corn, shorts and bran, we would advise the making of the ration not to exceed 50 per cent corn.

The brood sows at the Kansas Agricultural college at the present time are being fed on a ration made up as follows: Fifty pounds of corn, twenty-five pounds of shorts, eighteen pounds of bran, four pounds of tankage and three pounds of linseed oil meal. This makes a splendid ration for a brood sow suckling pigs. In addition they should always have access to good alfalfa hay and alfalfa or other pasture as soon as such pasture is available. The quantity of the suggested grain ration to feed will depend somewhat on the individual sow. The aim should be to feed each sow all she will clean up with an appetite. Of course this heavy feeding should not begin until the pigs are a week old at least.

Clean Milk.

It is well to bear in mind that pure milk is not produced in a barn that has strong odors; that clean milk is not drawn from dirty or filthy cows; that the milker's hands should be clean; that the open milk pail is a dirt catcher; that milk is not clean unless some effort has been made to prevent it from getting dirty and that it is more sensible to keep dirt out of milk than it is to rely on straining it out.

No Argument.

Patronizer of the Cheap Restaurant—Look here, waiter, this coffee is cold. Polite and Intelligent Waiter—Quite right, sir. This is a quick lunch cafe, and if the coffee was hot you couldn't drink it in a hurry.—London Scraps.

CONTRACT JUMPING IS TAME

Critics of Federal League Should Remember That American Circuit Was Once an "Outlaw."

Organized baseball lifts up its eyes in devout horror at the "crime of jumping to the 'outlaw' Federal league." Yet it should be remembered that the American league was once an "outlaw," too. A statistician has computed that of the 22 biggest stars who "jumped" to the National in the earlier baseball war 11 became either managers or umpires in organized baseball. Here they are:

John McGraw, Giants; Nap Lajoie, Cleveland; Bob Wallace, Browns; Bill Bernhart, Memphis (Southern league); Doc White, Vernon (Pacific Coast league); Jim Collins, Boston Red Sox; Bill Donovan, New York Yankees; Fielder Jones, White Sox and St. Louis Federals; Clark Griffith, Cincinnati and New York Americans and Washington; Jim Callahan, White Sox. Bill Dineen turned umpire.

The appended table will show the number of players lost by the different National league clubs by desertion during the three years' war:

Clubs.	1901	1902	1903	Totals.
Philadelphia	6	10	1	17
New York	9	4	2	15
Boston	3	1	2	11
Brooklyn	8	7	8	23
Chicago	6	6	0	12
Pittsburgh	3	1	8	12
Cincinnati	7	1	1	9
St. Louis	8	8	0	16
Totals	55	40	18	113

M'GRAW'S NEW STAR PITCHER

Pol Perritt Expected to Do Well With New York Giants—Twirler Is Tall and Rangy.

Manager McGraw is highly pleased with having bagged Pol Perritt. Perritt was with the St. Louis Cardinals last season, but declined to sign with that club again and went over to the Federal league. He was persuaded to return to organized baseball as a member of the Giants. He has made a good impression in the South and it is believed will make a valuable addition to the pitching corps of McGraw. Perritt is tall and rangy, tipping the scales at 185 pounds. He is well pleased with his berth as a Giant and if he turns out as well as expected should become a big favorite with the New York fans.

BASEBALL NOTES

Pete Allison goes back to Memphis from the Chicago Cubs.

The Brooklyn club has returned Pitcher Eddie Donalds to the Waco club of the Texas league.

James H. Cobb, signed by the Topeka club of the Western league, is no relation to Tyrus. He is a pitcher.

Boston Bill James has learned to pitch a curved ball. Professor Garner should not despair in his efforts.

The Mobile club of the Southern league has purchased the release of a pitcher named Crandall from the United States Army.

Rich Bush, younger brother of Leslie Bush of the Philadelphia Athletics, has signed with the Duluth club of the Northern league.

Mike O'Neill, who purchased his release from the Utica club of the New York state league, has signed to manage the Syracuse team.

A young brother of the veteran Con Strothers has been signed by the Mobile club Three-I league to play the outfield. His first name is Eugene.

Jack Reidy, who managed Rome in the Georgia-Alabama league last year, has been named manager of the Dothan team in the Georgia state circuit.

Dave Morey, for three years a crack pitcher on the Dartmouth college team, will wear a uniform of the Manchester New England league baseball team this season.

Bob Wray, a seven-footer, is trying out as pitcher for the Fort Smith club of the Western association. If he makes good he will be the tallest pitcher in organized baseball.

COPYRIGHT 1915 THE HOUSE OF KUPPENHEIMER

The Biltmore

YOU'VE read in the large periodicals and metropolitan newspapers about this popular Kuppenheimer model—the Biltmore—especially designed for men who wish to dress in unquestioned style without forcing the fashion.

The Biltmore depicts the much sought after quiet business suit, giving a man the self-assurance that comes from being well dressed, together with the sense of comfort in his clothes.

The fact that we are offering such models as the Biltmore goes far in explaining why the Live Store is winning an increasing measure of patronage among substantial citizens—and is largely due to this influence that ours is the fastest growing clothing business in this community.

Once upon a time a man invented glasses with which people could see their own faults. He starved to death.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

His Usual Behavior.

A little boy with big, innocent blue eyes and sunny smile had been having an unusually good romp all morning, but when dinner was announced he so quietly and sedately followed out after his uncle, who was visiting them, that the uncle, noticing, said to him: "Ray, I believe you are a pretty good boy." Ray, looking up solemnly, replied: "I'm just like this all the time."

In a Braid.

A youthful bride had undertaken to keep house. She went to the municipal markets, of course. One day the man at the vegetable stall displayed, for her admiration, a bunch of fine asparagus, "picked not three hours ago," he said. The new housekeeper gazed upon the asparagus with unaffected amazement. "Does it grow like that?" she asked. "I always supposed the cook braided the ends of it."

Surely Something Wrong.

The following was in the personal advertisement column of the London Times recently: "I contemplate with complaisant and reciprocal equanimity your ultimatum of renunciation. The antepenultimate disruption synchronizing with the psychological conglomeration of conflicting temperamental emotions prognosticated predestined finality." Had she jilted him, or what?

Let Nomordust Protect Your Home

Dust is the home of disease germs, and every time you spread this dust by sweeping they fill the air. Much sickness is caused in this way.

There is a new way to sweep, however, without raising dust and all doctors who know it endorse it.

You simply spread a powder called Nomordust across the room, then sweep it ahead of you as you go. Not a particle of dust will arise.

No need for a dusting cap with Nomordust—no need of covering your ornaments—in fact, you can dust them before you sweep, then leave them exposed and they'll be as clean as before you started.

Nomordust is a great time and labor saver. You can clean any room in half the time it now takes and you only have to sweep half as often, because you get your rooms so much cleaner each time. Makes rugs look like new—equally good for wood floors and linoleums.

Take the advice of physicians, collect the dust—don't spread it—particularly if you have children, for they are most easily affected by germs.

Get a 10c can of Nomordust to-day and try it. Money back if not more than pleased.

HIGHLAND.

Highland, April 14.—On Monday afternoon at half past 1 o'clock funeral services were held at the late home for Isaac Hammond, who died on Thursday, April 8. The services were conducted by the former pastor of the M. E. Church, Rev. G. S. Davis, assisted by Rev. J. Coddington. The sermon lesson and prayer were very impressive. The funeral was largely attended and several friends from Poughkeepsie, Hudson, Freedom Plains, New York and Brooklyn came to pay with people here the last tribute to a true friend. He had been ill several weeks, but was a patient sufferer and the Master proved to him his promise true which was, "I will come again and receive you unto myself that where I am there you may be also," and the gates of the celestial city were opened and he passed through into rest. He was a veteran and a soldier of the cross. He fought long and well, patiently and sweetly awaited the reward which the captain of the grand army on high gave him. The temporal and spiritual interests of the church always lay near his heart, and when able he was always found in the sanctuary. He was greatly missed in the home and among the people here for all who knew him found in him a true and helpful friend and brother. The floral tributes were many and beautiful, showing the high esteem in which he was held. Many friends express heartfelt sympathy to the wife and other relatives. The interment was in the Lloyd Cemetery, W. E. Wilcox having charge of the burial and Rev. William Wilcox of Freedom Plains officiating at the grave. The bearers were F. L. Metcalf, Solomon Ferris, R. H. Decker, A. D. Lent, Perry Hitchcock and Theron Decker, all members of the official board of the church with which Mr. Hammond was connected.

Mrs. J. J. Donovan was a shopper in Poughkeepsie Tuesday afternoon. Dr. and Mrs. Lamoree entertained guests last week from out of town. They have a new sexton in the M. E. Church, Landon Churchill.

Mr. Whitaker, the popular store keeper on Main street is doing a fine business. If you want first class groceries just give him a call. They will deliver all purchases. It is now a busy time for the women are now getting ready to clean house and they will want many new articles and the men want to do all in their power to keep on the right side of them and Mr. Whitaker and his clerks are very obliging, so just drop in there and see and buy and you will not be disappointed.

Miss Hattie Dickson has been entertaining a guest from Barrytown. Dr. Terwilliger's daughter gave a birthday party last Saturday to several of her friends and all had a delightful time and voted her a charming hostess.

Dr. Lamoree, Walter Hasbrouck, Aaron Rhodes and Wesley Rhoades went to Dutchess county Tuesday by automobile trout fishing. Hope they will not forget their many friends and just give them some of the speckled beauties on their return.

Mrs. Sybil Smith and Mabel Keller of Kingston were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Miller Tuesday at their home on Maple avenue.

Dr. J. W. Blakely is very ill at his home on Main street. His many friends are anxious to learn of his improvement and hope for his speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerlach and son were out of town last Sunday visiting Mrs. Gerlach's people.

Meeting of the Daughters of America, which was held last Wednesday evening was largely attended and a most interesting session was held. There were three candidates balloted on and at the next regular meeting these ladies will be initiated and there are two more on the waiting list. This order is growing in numbers and interest and the order should be sustained for it provides help for those members who are sick and there is also a death benefit. Additions to membership will bring additional zeal and enthusiasm. Also we would call attention to officers to study initiatory work. This if well done will be found efficient in producing a good attendance at meetings. After the council work at the last meeting an egg hunt was indulged in and some of the members carried home quite a nest full. Remember the date of the next meeting, April 21. Let everyone who belongs come out and every officer should be in their place. Do not neglect your duty.

Uriah Decker has greatly improved the exterior of his house on Vineyard avenue by having a wide veranda built across the front and one side of the house, giving them a very attractive place. He is now having the house painted. Frank Van Wert is doing the work. Mr. Decker believes in progressing. He certainly keeps his property up in shape, and has a home to be proud of.

S. A. Ferris has been doing some work in the M. E. parsonage. These people believe in fixing things comfortable for their pastor and family. The auxiliary will soon make plans for a reception for the Rev. and Mrs. Coddington.

Miss Clara Mandershiel was hostess on Monday evening to the Queen Esther Circle. They had a grand meeting and a fine social time. At the close of business refreshments were served, and all left with a pleasant memory of the evening spent at the Mandershiel home on Washington avenue.

Walter Constable and family of this place attended the funeral of Abram Constable, father of Walter Constable, at his late home in Clintondale on Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Abram Constable were residents of this place a few years ago.

Several of the state road officials were in town this week. Work is progressing and our streets will be in pretty bad shape for months to come. We hope to see the road finished by early fall.

Sorry to report the illness of Mrs. G. H. Brown of Vineyard avenue. Hope she will soon be out among the people.

Mrs. Ralph Lyons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Merritt, of Vineyard avenue, has been quite ill. She is improving at this writing.

Schofield, Presbyterian pastor, had charge of the services. The G. A. R. service was in charge of Edmund Palttridge. There were several members from the Post of Poughkeepsie present. H. W. Sutton of Clintondale was the undertaker in charge.

Mrs. Andrew W. Lent was a guest this week of a friend in Wappingers Falls.

Mrs. G. W. Pratt of Vineyard avenue had the Music Study Club, of which she is a member, at her home on Tuesday afternoon. We were informed they are preparing for a concert in May.

Church last Friday evening, which was enjoyed by a good sized audience. Mrs. Kelsey Staples, Mrs. J. W. Blakely and Miss Florence D. Kelsey rendered very delightful musical selections, and quite a good sized offering was given for the occasion. It was a success.

James Oakley returned home last Sunday. He has visited friends near Shokan, and other places, and had a fine time. He feels fit for work now, after this rest.

Miss Bertha Huson has been assisting with the work in the post office here during the illness of B. Clearwater, the postmaster.

Mrs. Maude Adams has been in New London, Conn., a short time. She is having a summer home erected there.

Mrs. William Feeter, Sr., has been entertaining relatives recently from Buffalo.

The latter part of last week the Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Tetley and two children were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Feeter. They were on their way to Peekskill where he will have the pastorate of a fine church there. They have been in Catskill and while there won the esteem and love of not only his own church people but other denominations as well, who regret their departure.

Low Thorn was in Kingston last week on business. He keeps busy these days.

Miss Alberta Allen, sister of Mrs. O. Sheeley, has accepted a position at Lake Mohonk for the season. It is a delightful spot and hope Miss Allen will enjoy the place.

J. R. Seaman returned home Friday after spending several days in Long Island.

Alec Hasbrouck had guests last Sunday from Newburgh.

Mrs. Feeter, Sr., had as her guests last week Mrs. Irving Deyo and Mrs. Hornbeck and son of Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hopper of Vineyard avenue have had as their guest Mrs. Harry Schumacker, of New York city.

The Broad Way Leads to Goodyear Tires

Try it a little while. It has carried some 400,000 motorists to the haven of content. It is traveled by more users than has any other tire. That has been so for years.

We can't win you to Fortified Tires by asking you to try them. The tires themselves must win you.

But our plea is that you should try the tires that countless men found best. There must be a reason as you know, why Goodyears dominate like this. Last year men bought about one Goodyear for every car in use.

Men Like You

This Goodyear army is composed of men like you. They want quality, safety, endurance. They want trouble-saving and low cost per mile.

Goodyears best met these wants. They met them because they are Fortified Tires.

In five costly ways, employed by no other maker, they offer unique protection. They combat five troubles—rim-cuts, blowouts, loose treads, punctures and skidding—as is done in no other tire.

Price Reduction

On February 1st we made another big price reduction. That makes three reductions in two years, totaling 45 per cent.

Today Goodyears, more than ever before, offer you most for the money. They offer you the utmost possible in tires, measured by cost per mile. Doesn't their top place prove that?

The following Goodyear Service Stations will supply you:

SOCIETY NOTES.

The telephone call of Mrs. C. N. Reed, society news reporter for The Freeman, has been changed to 1012-W.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Van Steenberg of Saugerties have issued invitations for a dance at Russell hall, April 21, in honor of their guest, Miss Clara Schaeffer of New York.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Rebecca A. Townsend, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Townsend of Fleischmanns, to Burrell Schwarzwald of Chichester. The wedding will take place on Tuesday, April 20.

The many friends of Miss Arietta Brigham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Brigham of Springfield, Mass., and granddaughter of Archibald Winter of this city, will be interested in the following social account received from one of the Springfield newspapers: Covers were laid for thirty-eight in the dining room of the Naveset Club, Springfield, Mass., on Monday evening, when the annual banquet of the Beta Chapter of the Kappa Phi Sorority of the Springfield high school, was held. The T-shaped table was decorated with the Sorority colors, green and white, carnations and ferns forming the floral adornment. At the conclusion of the banquet, given at half after six o'clock, toasts were given, Miss Brigham responding to the toast, "The Prophecy." Later in the evening some twenty of the active members and alumni adjourned to the home of Miss Brigham on St. James avenue and an informal dance was enjoyed. Late in the evening elaborate refreshments were served.

U. A. Girls Present Mrs. Bristol.

The members of the P. V. P. Club of Ulster Academy would remind their friends of the entertainment which they will give at the chapel of the Wurts Street Presbyterian Church next Monday evening, when Mrs. Royal A. Bristol will give an evening of her delightful readings. Tickets may be purchased of any of the girls, members of the club or at the door.

Cigars and Flowers.

The cigar and flower booth at the charity ball will be in charge of Miss Anne A. Heaney, ably assisted by number of ladies who have promised to make this booth one of the finest at the ball in point of service and also in regard to money matters. Each year a substantial sum is realized for the benefit of the sanitarium from this booth. The men are urged to delay the purchase of smoking material until after their arrival and purchase it from the ladies in charge. The assistants at the booth are Mrs. Palmer Canfield, Jr., Mrs. John Hauck, Mrs. Peter Barmann, Jr., Miss Alice M. Keefe, Mrs. John O'Leary, Mrs. Mark O'Meara, Mrs. Frank A. Johnston, Mrs. F. G. Schmidt and Mrs. A. J. Cook.

Atharhacton Club.

The Atharhacton Club held a large and enthusiastic meeting at the home of Miss Ellen Van Slyke, "Rockhurst." Miss Edith Scott had the paper for the day, her subject being "The Essay as Reflecting the Trend of Modern Thought and Action," and a very able and com-pensive paper it was, summing up the year's work and study of "Present Day English and American Essays." In the general discussion following the reading of the paper, it was the consensus of opinion that just what constitutes an essay depends largely upon the viewpoint of the reader. The last meeting of the club will be held next Wednesday at the home of Miss Schaeffer on Washington avenue. At this meeting officers for the ensuing year will be elected and the program of next year's study, "Modern Poets," will be read.

Milk Ratings Corrected.

In the report of milk as given in The Freeman yesterday the product of John Osterhout of Mt. Marion was given as C when it should have been B, while that of John Ostrander of Hurley was rated at grade B instead of grade C. The milk of Mr. Ostrander is graded as C on account of the lack of physical examination. The similarity of names caused them to become confused in the report which was sent to The Freeman.

Painting the Fire Station.

The firemen at the Central Fire Station are painting the exterior wood work on the building and it makes a fine appearance. The interior of the building has also been placed in fine shape by the knights of the brush.

Barge Launched.

This morning the barge W. L. Howland was launched from Schoonmaker's shipyard on the Island Dock.

When Your Fiftieth Birthday Comes will you have the sound heart, steady nerves and good digestion of your younger days?

Many men and women reach the prime of life, burdened with stomach trouble, headaches, constipation, nervousness, heart flutter, etc., and frequently the cause is the drug, caffeine, in the coffee they drink.

You can quickly tell if coffee is injuring your health by stopping it ten days and using

INSTANT POSTUM

This delicious, pure food-drink contains no caffeine nor any other harmful ingredient. It is wholesome and invigorating, with a snappy flavor very much like that of Old Gov't Java.

And Instant Postum is so easy to make. Put a level teaspoonful in a cup and add hot water—that's all.

The convenience of Instant Postum is seen at a glance. Sold in 30c and 50c tins. Some prefer Postum Cereal—the original form, which must be well boiled, 15c and 25c packages.

Grocers sell both kinds, the flavor is equally delicious and the cost per cup is about the same.

"Miss Fix It"

The Up to Date Girl.

By ELSIE V. H. BALDWIN
Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

"Congratulations!" said Mr. Harris, strolling into the office of John Tyler, the lawyer.

"Thanks," replied his friend laconically, trying not to look self-conscious. "Never thought you'd do it, John," continued Mr. Harris. "Everybody gave you up as a hopeless back long ago; but, come to think of it, this rather suits my convenience, because you're probably feeling rather more lenient with the frailer sex just now, and I want you to take a little girl in your office who needs a job."

"Can't do it," objected Mr. Tyler, looking greatly alarmed at the idea. "Sorry, Harris, but I simply can't." "Come, now, Tyler," urged Mr. Harris. "She's a nice little thing—old man Parker's girl, and she needs the money. She's my wife's cousin, too, and—"

"No, sir," interrupted Mr. Tyler emphatically, jerking his glasses off in his excitement and nervously swinging them on their black string. "No woman in this office! Never! Never again!"

"Why not?" inquired Mr. Harris anxiously.

"Well, it's too long a story to tell the whole of it, but I'll give you a brief synopsis of it."

"You see"—he settled himself down for the narration—"we had an advertisement in the paper. 'Wanted—Lady to take charge of correspondence file in law office. Good looks no recommendation, or something like that. About two dozen answered it. Most of them didn't seem to have noticed that we said 'lady.' They all looked alike, and I couldn't see that one was better looking or knew any more than another, so I just shut my eyes a second and pointed my finger, and when I opened them again I had picked her out. Blake, her name was—Susie Blake."

"She wasn't bad looking as girls go—kind of slight and yellow haired. Pretty, I guess you'd have called her. And sort of languid, as though she'd faint away at the sound of a cuss word."

"To tell the truth, though," he hastened to remark, "I didn't pay much attention to her. I was pretty busy with the Reburn case then and hadn't time to think of anything else much."

"But one morning when she'd been here about a week"—Mr. Tyler's memory for dates was quite remarkable in so busy a man—"she came into my room with some papers I'd called for, and while I was looking them over she said, 'Mr. Tyler, there is something I'd like to ask you.'"

"Ask away," I said, or something to that effect, wondering all the time whether she was going to touch me for an advance on her salary."

"I'm always here by half past 8, but I was going to suggest that the office boy should come promptly at 9, so that I could refer the letters around before the men get here. It ought to be fixed."

"Well, of course I fixed it, though I couldn't remember ever having been told before what ought to be done in my office by a woman. I thought it wouldn't hurt to humor her and that a lecture for the office boy would be the end of the matter."

"But no, indeed! I hadn't more than but just forgotten all about it when she called in again to see me."

"Mr. Tyler"—she always began with my name, as though she thought I was in imminent danger of forgetting who I was—"I've been looking over the files very carefully," she said, "and your system is all wrong."

"Indeed," I assured her, "it isn't my system. But what's wrong with it, anyway?"

"The numbering system should be used, and in addition you should have a vertical steel file, and the papers should be laid out flat, and—"

"Enough," I said. "Let it go at that. Take it out!"

"So it was taken out, and a brand new green and gold steel arrangement was brought in and a whole lot of little cards and a case to hold them, and Miss Blake was happy."

"Well," inquired Mr. Harris as his friend paused to get his breath, "wasn't the system any good?"

"Yes, indeed," replied the lawyer heartily. "It was a grand system, I'll admit. You could find anything from the papers for a divorce case to the latest letter from Brennan to Miss Blake. Oh, yes, all the men were crazy about her. They called her 'Miss Fix It' behind her back, but you bet they fell all over themselves dancing attendance on her. And she was pretty. Dominated Mr. Tyler in an abominable manner, while a fatuous smile spread slowly over his features."

"We had some peace for awhile," he continued, visibly recalling himself from a brown study, "but just as I was thinking to myself that she seemed to be the really quite efficient for a girl she presented another one of those fearful requests."

"She came into my room after lunch with a bunch of sweet peas in her hand and laid them on my desk. 'I thought you might share these with me,' she said. They freshen the place up so, and it's so dreadfully hot. I took them. You can't hurt a girl's feelings. And, just by way of returning the attention and half as a joke, I said, 'Now, what can I do for you?'"

"She hesitated, as though she could not quite make up her mind which of a hundred and sixteen things to ask for, and finally she picked out the one hundred and seventeenth."

"Would you—wouldn't you order some flower boxes to be put in the

KAISER AND STAFF IN FRANCE. SHELL TORN DECK OF CRUISER.

The large photograph shows the Kaiser and his staff in Vouziers, France. They are standing in the market place, awaiting the passage of German troops through the town. From left to right the personnel is General Von Lindenberg, Prince Eitel Friedrich, the Kaiser's second son, General Von Einem, a former minister of war, an unnamed officer, the Kaiser, and Major Von Bismarck, commander of the first regiment of guards.

This is one of the latest authentic photographs of the Kaiser.

The other picture shows the deck of a British battle cruiser where a shell from a Turkish battery struck her in the Dardanelles bombardment. Although the deck is protected with the heaviest armor plate, the projectile tore through it like cheese.

office windows and let me plant some flowers in them?"

"Confound it all, I didn't want my office turned into a florist's shop, but I'd brought the thing on myself by accepting her miserable sweet peas and by asking to do something for her like a driving idiot, so I had to consent and do it with a good grace too. However, that venture wasn't as bad as it might have been, because we got quite a reputation from those window boxes."

"Well, old man," remarked Mr. Harris encouragingly, "it is a nuisance to have a woman messing around a place of business, but your Miss Blake doesn't seem to have done very much damage."

"No," admitted Mr. Tyler slowly, "but then," he added, cheering up a little, "you haven't heard all of it yet. That's a small part of it."

"There's the time she jumped on Brennan. Brennan's a mighty smart chap and a good, solid, reliable sort of fellow, but he's also very grouchy."

"Well, one day she went in to speak to him about some papers and found him sitting in his usual position, with his hat on the back of his head and his feet on his desk and staring vacantly out of the window. Miss Blake began explaining the points, but Brennan went right on looking out on the street and apparently not paying the slightest attention to her. She kept it up a second or two and then she stopped. At first Brennan didn't notice that she had stopped, but when it dawned on him that she was standing there looking at him hard enough to bore a hole in his back he jumped around in his chair like lightning, and to do that he had to remove his feet from the desk."

"Now that I have your attention," said Miss Blake, "I will ask you to remove your hat." "Oh, my," cried Mr. Tyler, snatching his knee with great enjoyment, "I'd love to have seen Brennan's face! I guess he never had been spoken to that way before. However he may have felt about it, though, he took his hat off and listened while she explained the business all over again straight through to the bitter end."

"It was just about this time that Watkins took to staying at the office after 5 o'clock. I thought there must be something up, because in all the five years or more he has worked for me I have never before known him to do such a thing. I happened to stay late myself one evening and caught him, and he looked as guilty as though he had been getting into the safe."

"Miss Blake was in her room, so in passing through I asked her why Watkins was staying that night."

"I couldn't say, Mr. Tyler," she said as demure as you please, "unless he's getting up material for a divorce case."

"I was halfway home before it dawned on me what she meant. Everybody that knows Watkins knows that his old lady is as jealous as you make them and threatens him with a suit for divorce every time he looks at a hosiery advertisement. But, you may take my word for it, Miss Blake wasn't bothering about Watkins."

"We had about six office boys in three months," Mr. Tyler went on. "She worked them too hard and was a total disbeliever in dying or dead grandmothers, which injured their sensitive family pride. It was an awful job picking out new ones, and I finally tired of it and told Miss Blake that if the present one left she'd have to do the selecting after that. He left the next day."

"I made out an advertisement for a new one and gave it to Miss Blake to take down to the Sun office, but she asked me to hold it back for a day or two, as she had some one in view."

"Meanwhile things at the office were getting worse and worse—not the filing system, of course. That was as excruciatingly perfect as—well, as Miss Blake herself. But the men weren't doing a good day's work in the whole course of a week."

"They were so occupied in carrying out Miss Blake's wishes that they had no time to give to my orders. Even Brennan used to jump around like an office boy for her, and it is the solemn truth that Watkins dusted her desk for her every day, while Peyton watered the window boxes—those window boxes, by the way, that she was going

TRIO WITH MAGICIAN

Magic will form only a part of the program of the Springer Company at the Chautauqua. Assisting Bennett Springer, the magician, will be a reader, a vocalist and a cornetist, each of whom is an artist.

Springer does the famous Kellar trunk trick, but one of the most beautiful illusions presented on any platform is his "Mysterious Throne." The throne is vacant when first seen by the audience, but at the proper moment a wave of the wand sends a queen thereon. Where does she come from? Ask Springer, or perhaps the queen herself might testify. At the same instant electric umbrellas light up, and the magician produces hundreds of beautiful roses from thin air and pours them into the umbrellas.

The supporting company consists of Miss Elsie Mae Gordon, a reader who is capable of giving an entire evening's program herself were it necessary; Miss Anne Burke, soprano and accompanist; and Waino Kauppi, the "wonder" cornetist. Kauppi is a Russian by birth and is a cornetist of marvelous ability even were his age not considered.

Best Hour for Reconciliation.

A police justice in speaking before the Woman Taxpayers' league of Michigan said: "For some reason I find it easier to reconcile a man and his wife between the hours of eight and nine in the evening, rather than the same hours in the morning. Just why I do not know—perhaps there is a mellowing influence at that time—but it's a fact."

Dressing His Majesty in Style.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

A whirlwind flock of trotters has come to the front in the past 20 years and Peter the Great has sired the majority of those that rank better than 2:10.

The famous sire is still alive, hearty and vigorous, on the Patcher Wilkes Stock Farm in Lexington, Ky., and horsemen are certain that he will sire many more racing wonders before his breeding usefulness is over.

Detailing the record of this wonderful stallion, the Trotter and Pacer Magazine in its Breeders Number says:

"Peter the Great is the sire of a faster trotter than the world's champion of twenty years ago.

"He has thirty trotters in the 2:10 list, which is only one less than comprised the entire 2:10 list in 1895.

"He has fourteen trotters with records of 2:05 or better, just 60 per cent more than the entire list of twenty years ago.

"He has placed five 2:10 three year old trotters to his credit.

"He has had three two-year olds take records of 2:10 or better.

"Peter the Great now has a total of thirty trotters in the 2:10 list, or ten times as many as had Electioneer, the leader in 1895.

"Peter the Great last season had thirteen trotters take records of 2:10. The season of 1915 may see a dozen or more additions to his 2:10 list.

"While no son of Peter the Great as yet holds the stallion trotting record, good judges expect to see Peter Velo (3), 2:03½, beat the record the coming season.

"The above is by no means the entire story of the achievements of Peter the Great, but merely a comparison of things as they were when he first saw light and how they are now.

"Another high achievement attained by Peter the Great was that of putting in more new standard performers in one season than was ever before put in by one horse, he having added forty-two new ones in 1914, the best previous record being thirty-nine, established by Electioneer, who was the leading sire of 2:10 trotters at the time when Peter the Great was born.

"Peter the Great also holds many honors in other lines. He is the only horse to ever win that blue ribbon of the trotting turf, the Kentucky Futurity, and in turn sire a winner of the same event. In addition to this he has also sired more winners of this classic event than any other two sires, having had four winners of the major event, and two winners in the junior division.

The get of Peter the Great have established enviable reputations for extreme gameness, and in addition to this the family as a whole is noted for its soundness. During the season of 1914 the offsprings of Peter the Great won upwards of $123,000, which is more than has ever been won in a single season by the get of any one horse.

"Peter the Great himself possessed a sensational flight of speed and was officially timed a first half of a race heat in 1:01½, with the second quarter of 29¾ seconds. This was the first instance of where a trotter was officially timed a quarter below 30 seconds in a race.

"As a four-year-old Peter the Great won the fastest two-heat race ever trotted by a stallion of that age, and this record was not lowered until 1909, a period of ten years. At this age he also won three races in faster time than any other stallion of his age, with one exception."
